Oxford-Cambridge Ties Cornell-Princeton; Sonnica Leads Again; MacDonald Wins Open

Each Team Gets Five "Firsts" But Britons Take Six "Seconds"

Abrahams, of Cambridge, Scores Two Victories and With Aid of Captain Rudd, Who Captures Half-Mile Race, Turns Tide Against Our Collegians

With the score 5 to 3 against them, athletes from England's two entest universities, Oxford and Cambridge, rallied sensationally yesand earned a tie with the combined Princeton-Cornell e first track and field struggle ever staged between these colleges.

Foresman, the unknown until he proved his worth against one of the greatest runners of the world, was the center of interest after his great race. proved his worth against one of the greatest runners of the world, was the center of interest after his great race. He waited for Seagrove to recover, and as the pair walked across the green there was as much applause for the vanquished as there was for the victor.

The Englishmen drew first blood when Abrahams was declared the winner of the "century" dash, but the Americans retaliated quickly, and went into the lead when Charlie Halsey, of Princeton, the metropolitan junior champion, won the shot put and Stake, of Cornell, captured first honors in the running high jump.

Bill Stevenson, the national quarter-mile champion increased the advantage when he raced to a brilliant victory over Rudd in the 440-yard run. Off his mark fast Stevenson led Rudd for the entire trip and won with three yards to spare.

Then followed the 120-yard high hurdles race which resulted in a victory for William Massey, another Princetonian, who defeated Partridge, Cambridge, by five yards. This performance was followed by the three-mile race and the Americans were fareut in frunt in the race for point honors, but Abrahams and Rudd stepped into the breach and as a result of their efforts the tide was turned and honors were divided.

McNamara Gets Ace On the Thirteenth Hole

The ball struck just on the edge of the green and rolled rapidly to the tin just in front of a trap. The cheer that went up, brought those about the clubhouse on the run to the scene. It is a strange coindence that this hole, which gave McNamara his one, was the ruination of Cyril Walker.
